This article aims to provide an extensive review of Fatehpur Sikri, revisiting its history, architecture, significance, and the contemporary efforts to preserve and study this UNESCO World Heritage Site.

Historical Context: The Birth of Fatehpur Sikri

Origins and Political Motivations

Fatehpur Sikri was established in 1571 by Emperor Akbar as a strategic political capital and as a reflection of his religious and cultural beliefs. The site's name translates to "City of Victory," commemorating Akbar's military successes and consolidating his power in North India. Originally conceived as an administrative center, it was intended to serve as a hub for religious dialogue and cultural integration, embodying Akbar's policy of Sulh-e-Kul (peace to all religions).

The decision to build Fatehpur Sikri was also influenced by the failure of earlier campaigns and the need for a new capital after the conquest of Gujarat and the consolidation of Mughal power. The city's location near the present-day city of Agra was strategic, offering proximity to the imperial heartland while facilitating control over the surrounding territories.

Reasons for Abandonment

Despite its grandeur, Fatehpur Sikri was abandoned after just 14 years, around 1585-86. Several factors contributed to this sudden desertion:

- Water Scarcity: The region's arid climate and inadequate water supply rendered sustaining the city difficult.
- Changing Political Priorities: Akbar's court shifted focus towards other regions, and the city lost its political importance.
- Economic Challenges: The costs of maintaining such an elaborate city proved to be a burden.
