QuestionAnswer What are the main functions of the human skeletal system as covered in Cengage's anatomy and physiology resources? The human skeletal system provides structural support, facilitates movement by anchoring muscles, protects vital organs, produces blood cells in the bone marrow, and stores minerals like calcium and phosphorus. How does the Cengage sample content explain the process of muscle contraction? Cengage's sample content describes muscle contraction as the sliding filament theory, where actin and myosin filaments slide past each other using energy from ATP, leading to shortening of the muscle fibers and movement. What are the key differences between the structure of arteries and veins as highlighted in the ground sample? Arteries have thicker, more elastic walls to withstand high pressure from blood pumped by the heart, whereas veins have thinner walls, larger lumens, and contain valves to prevent backflow, facilitating blood return to the heart. How does the respiratory system facilitate gas exchange according to the Cengage anatomy and physiology sample? The respiratory system facilitates gas exchange primarily in the alveoli of the lungs, where oxygen diffuses into the blood, and carbon dioxide diffuses out, driven by differences in partial pressures. What role do the nervous system components play in maintaining homeostasis, based on the Cengage ground sample? The nervous system monitors internal conditions, processes information, and initiates responses through reflexes and signaling pathways to maintain stable internal environments, such as regulating temperature, pH, and blood pressure.
